MGAPC

The purpose of MGAPC is to promote community awareness and participation in programs related to horticulture.

The program was started in 1972 in Washington State. New Jersey held its first class in 1984. In Passaic County, the first class was held in 1996. Since then, thousands of Master Gardeners have been trained throughout the state and given hundreds of thousands of volunteer hours in service to the residents of the Garden State.

Master gardeners are trained volunteers who assist Rutgers in its mission to deliver horticulture programs and information.
